Desktop refuses to join 5ghz network (WIN 10) - [Solved]

2019/11/03

I have poured through forums, with absolutely zero luck anywhere. Here's the rundown. I recently switched to a Motorola router from the Comcast rental one (yeah, I know, shouldn't have used it in the first place) anyway...I have an older Rosewill model wifi card in my PCI express slot. The card is an AC model so it obviously works for the 5ghz network. Besides the letter coding, when I used the comcast router it had zero issue. It would pick up the full 150 speed at times, but never got under 80. However, now it only connects to the 2.4GHZ connection, locking me to a solid 28-32mbs. Fantastic. My iPhone X and laptop though have zero issue connecting to the 5GHZ connection (I still have solid signal in my backyard, bedroom, and garage). I have checked all the settings within the router itself (a newer Motorola model) and in my settings, I've updated drivers to the latest ones, and still, nothing. It will just basically attempt to connect and then time out, over and over and over. Is there any fix to this at all, or am I just s.o.l....because at the moment, it's looking like the latter. Thanks
