Wifi adaptor or access point ethernet only HDTV - [Solved]

2019/11/10

Hi guys, I have a wifi question. I was at the barbers today and he asked me if there was a way to connect his Ethernet only HDTV to the internet. He does not have his own internet connection at his shop, and was wondering if he could connect using a Comcast Hotspot connection via his personal Comcast login. I suggested he could buy a Firestick, or similar, and log into the Hotspot that way, and use those features on the TV, but then I remembered I had an old Trendnet TEW-640MB laying around somewhere in my garage. I used this to connect my old LCD, receiver, and bluray player to my home network back in the day. Thing is, that was my home network, and not a Comcast hotspot in a barber shop. If memory serves me in order to connect this old gizmo to a network, you have to do so inside the modem or router. Which would render hotspot connection not possible. Am I right on this?https://www.trendnet.com/products/proddetail?prod=270\_TEW-640MBIf so, then is there a gadget, or gizmo, out there that can, or would, connect to a Comcast Hotspot? Everything I use is wireless, and has been so for years, so I'm a little out of touch with this sort of thing these days. Thanks in advance for all responses.
